

National Publication

* All-Night Star Party

11.20pm BBC2
It's National Astronomy Week and Mars is currently the closest it's been to Earth for thousands of years. To mark these occasions, BBC2 mounts the UK's largest ever television sky-watching event, which allows viewers to decide which area of space to point some of the world's biggest telescopes at. Sophie Raworth (above) and Rajesh Mirchandani host the event from Jodrell Bank, home of the Lovell radio-telescope.

Page & Position

Media

The Independent on Sunday: Review

Date: 17/08/2003

Type: General Consumer Frequency: 52/Per year Circulation: 223,870 (ABC)

MediaDisk Ref: 65B-3

Media